AIRPORT ACCESS

“Heathrow Express” – the latest issue, valid until 24/06/12, refers to “Terminals 1 & 3” as did the October 2011 issue (the latest pocket “Tube map” ,dated January 2012, at time of writing, still has “Terminals 1, 2, 3”), Terminal 2 is currently being redeveloped, 100x125mm.

ART ON THE UNDERGROUND

“Hard Metal Body” – a new work by Alice Channer created for Notting Hill Gate station as part of Art on the Underground’s Central Line series. Along each stretch of wall on either side of the escalators leading to the Central Line platforms, a succession of rough ellipses, varying in size, seems to float above the handrails. Hard Metal Body is a playful continuation of Channer’s interest in pinpointing a new human subjectivity defined by the industrial and post-industrial materials and techniques that constitute our late-capitalist era!! Leaflet is 1/3 A4 (x8).

“White City” – Anna Barham has created a new work for White City Underground station in response to the themes of communication and exchange. The work is in two parts: a series of posters in the passageways at the station and a series of related video works to be viewed on line. Many of the posters feature seemingly identical pixelated squares known as QR (Quick Response) codes, a data storage device, with information that can be accessed with appropriate reader software and a smart phone. Although the solid colour of which the codes are usually made up has been altered by additional images, it is possible to discern a range of scenes taken from journeys along the Central Line, including the interiors of trains and stations. To leave a comment: art.tfl.gov.uk. Leaflet is 1/3 A4 (x6x2), i.e. A2 unfolded.

CONTINUING YOUR JOURNEY

Leaflets with 2011 dates have been reported for King’s Cross St. Pancras (TFL21469.12.11) and Whitechapel (TFL21417.12.11). Both are A5 (x2).

CROSSRAIL

“Crossrail Pocket Guide” – a new, but undated issue, and a new cover design, with details of central London stations and step-free access plans, Z-card format and reference 30945/30.

MAJOR PROJECTS

“Welcome to your new King’s Cross” – not specifically Underground but London’s primary transport hub, a guide to the new western concourse, contains central London Underground diagram, Network Rail, 55x85mm (x8x3).

“Your new King’s Cross” – an East Coast TOC version of the above.

“Welcome to King’s Cross 2012” – a First Capital Connect version of the above.

OLYMPIC GAMES

The Olympic and Paralympic Route Networks (ORN/PRN) are a network of roads across London connecting venues, accommodation and transport hubs across London. They will be open to all general traffic though with some restricted turns, suspension of some bus stops or lanes, and changes to loading and parking. About a third of the ORN/PRN will be designated Games Lanes which, when operational, will only be available for accredited vehicles. TfL has produced a series of leaflets for each borough concerned, with street map of routes and location of LU and NR stations. So far copies for Camden, Tower Hamlets and Westminster have been reported. Leaflets are A5 (x3).
